Important Notes

1. A Registration Certificate is required to be carried for the lawful navigation of any ship proceeding on overseas voyages and on those occasions must be produced to a Customs officer.
2. A Registration Certificate is not a title document. A search of the Register will reveal the current registered ownership and registered encumbrances and caveats.
3. It is an offence for a person to use a Registration Certificate which contains entries not made by or endorsed by the Registrar or Deputy Registrar of Ships or by a delegate of the Registrar (Section 25).
4. Upon transfer of ownership of a registered ship:
 - This Certificate must be handed to the new owner, or to the Registrar upon request.
 - The new owner must forward the Certificate together with the prescribed documentation evidencing the transfer to the Registrar within 14 days of the transfer.
5. Should the ship be lost, broken up or sold to foreigners the Registrar must be notified immediately and the Certificate, if existing, given to the Registrar. Changes of ownership, address or other registered particulars should be notified to the Registrar within 14 days.
6. The ship's name, home port, official number and tonnage (or length overall) must be marked according to law on the ship at all times. It is an offence to change any markings on a registered ship without the Registrar's authorisation.
